Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

"To him that hath, shall be given, and from him that hath not, shall be taken even the little that he hath." Thus the Good Book describes the condition of gold mining communities throughout the nation, as a result of making them the "guinea pigs" of an experiment in allocating labor and compelling men to leave one job for another in an effort to further the war effort.

Now, as before stated in this column, we do believe that if closing the gold mines completely will help to win the war, this community is willing and ready to endure the hardships that result therefrom. A good many of us have sons in the armed forces of Uncle Sam. We feel that considering their sacrifice of good jobs, and it may be, their lives, we would be unworthy of them to whimper about conditions on the home front.

But after reading the report of Errol MacBoyle, published in another column, concerning his experiences in Washington, showing that our community and the gold mining industry, are controlled by such learned ignoramuses, as one Sam Lipkovitz, styled an economist, a graduate of Harvard and of the "new school of thought," without one scintilla of experience in mining, without any understanding of distruptions his theories, put into practice, cause, one is forced to question in how far patriotism should bend to the whimsies of Washington.

Washington has been discribed, in these war times, as a lunatic asylum in which the nuts run the asylum. Nothing indicates it so much, perhaps, as that in a nation of thrifty, money-saving people, under normal conditions, their government, under stress of war, becomes a prodigal, wasteful spender o their savings. Mr. MacBoyle points out that there is a great multitude of bureaus and agencies in Washington whose functions overlap, causing inter-bureau feuds, and whose authority conflicts one with another. He calls this the principal brake upon an all-out efficient war effort. The wastes must run into astronomical sums of tax money.

Taking a large view of the matter, the dislocations caused by Washington bureaus, boards, commissons, army and navy and various executives with autocratic powers, fighting among themselves for more power, more authority, is probably not so hurtful to the nation, as an outright attack by its enemies and invasion of this country would be. Yet it did take Pearl Harbor to convince this country that unity in control of the war effort is vital. While our Washington leadership continually cries for a unified war effort, our elected and appointed leaders themselves are not united in purpose.

To say that this confusion in Washington is inevitable, has always marked Uncle Sam's prosecution of war, is simply to take a defeatist attitude. If our industries, business and labor, had taken that attitude regarding the huge quotas of ships, planes, fanks and munitions, the president called for after Pearl Harbor, we would not have had the tremendous flow of armaments that flow from our factories, astonishing our allies, and enemies alike.

So, it is our part, every little country editor, every little business man and farmer, every working man and housewife, to lend their voices to a huge chorus of protest against inefficient bureaucracy ,bungling and incompetent leadership, against continuance of soft social experiments in the face of war's realities, in an effort by a united people to restore order, efficiency and unity in their own government.

MacBoyle Thinks Gold Price Will Be Pegged Higher When War Ends

Back from nearly a month's stay in Washington, Errol MacBoyle, chairman of the State Mining Bureau, who represented California's gold mining interests in various hearings in the nation's capital reports that it was practically impossible to convince Washington's theorists of the injustice to, and the disruption of many communities, that closing of the gold mines would entail. He expresses his confidence, however, in the future of gold and gold mining.

"I believe," said MacBoyle, "that after the war is over, the astronomical debts of the allied countries will either have to be repudiated as Germany did after War No. 1, or the price of gold will be advanced so that the "profit" which will be made on the increased value of the gold holdings of the allied nations, will in part pay off the war debts.

"It is becoming evident that in the post-war world an international currency backed by gold will become necessary and it behooves Uncle Sam to see to it that he and no one else keeps control of the international purse strings. It is already rumored in Washington that the international currency will be called the "International English-American pound sterling" and that the dollar will NOT be used in internation trade.

"Those who study international economics and finance are prophesying that gold will increase greatly in value. A recent article in the Canadian Northern Miner said that a value of $250 per ounce was not of reason considering the needs of the post-war world.

"Undoubtedly gold will be one of the key foundation block upon which a permanent peace can be built.

"An observer in Washington is struck by the inefficient operations of the multitude of government bureaus and agencies, many with overlapping functions and conflicting authority. There is no question but that this condition is the main brake on an efficient and all-out war effort.

"These agencies, in some instances do not hesitate to belittle congress and even try to make the people believe that congress is to blame for their own shortcomings and mistakes. It is quite evident that many of the bureaucrats are embued with the New Deal philosophies of the complete socialization of the U. S. government.

"Congress is beginning to awake to this insidious attack and it behooves all real Americans, whether bankers, business men, laborer, miners or farmers to back up the real Americans in congress.

Mr. MacBoyle, discussing the battle to prevent or modify the WPB order closing the gold mines, states that Congressman Harry L. Englebright, Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada and Senator Murray of Montana were most helpful and gave the gold mine interests every assistance possible.

"Apparently the September plan to close the gold mines," said MacBoyle, "was conceived a year ago. But this only resulted in denying gold mines, under the priority system, materials needed for mining.

"Later on the labor division of the WPB had the blilliant idea that by closing the gold mines 15,000 men could be made available for mining copper and other strategic minerals. McNutts Man-power Board picked up the club eventually and used it effectively.

"On September 29 we were notified that a hearing would be held in Washington on October 1 to consider closing all gold properties, including mines, hydraulic and dredging operations. The time was too short to prepare statistics showing the tremendous decrease in gold mine employment since Pearl Harbor. In fact, the time given us was so short that most of us had to take a plane immediately to be present at the hearing.

"Batt of the WPB presided at the meeting. Those advocating the closing of the gold mines were headed by Brig. Gen. Lucius Clay, Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of operations for the War Man-Power Board, and Sam Lipkovitz, labor advisor and economist of the WPB.

"We urged that a gold mine was not like a manufacturing concern and that if the mines were not kept open at a cost of thousands of dollars pe month, with no production to offset the cost, the entire investment would be, in many cases, lost.

"Lipkovitz and Gen. McSherry took every opportunity to dispute our testimony and discredit us. It became quite evident that the main attack was being directed to the Homestake mine, the largest gold producer in the United States, It was pointed out that as a result of propaganda put out by the WPB and the threat of closing the gold mines that the stock in the Homestake had been depecreciated $25,000,000. Lipokvitz replied that this was "gambling money." Congressman Englebright denied this and stated that for sixty years Homestake had been a constant dvidend producer and its stock was considered a standard investment for funds of widows and orphans.

"When State Senator McCormack of the Natomas gold dredgers stated that the few men employed in that branch of the gold ndustry knew nothing about underground mining. it was brushed aside with the airy statement of Lipkovitz that the men could be used in open pit mining. It was quite evident that M. Lipkovtiz knew little about mining and that he was most interested in stopping production of gold dredgers and placers, which in California alone amounts to over $25,000,000 annually.

"It developed at a later meeting called by Senator McCarran that besides being interested in recruiting men for the copper mines that the Man-Power Board wished to use the gold mines as a "guinea pig" as an experiment in drafting men and compelling them through the U. S. Emplomeent agency to go to industries selected by the board. In reply to the question by one of the leading gold miners of Colorado why the Manpower board did not get J. L. Lewis to increase the working hours of his coal miners from 35 to 48 hours per week and thus release thousands of miners, skilled in underground mining, the reply was a shrug of the shoulders and the statement that other factors were involved to make such an order impossible, that is, the organized opposition of labor.

"It is a well know fact that Canadian and U. S. gold mining stocks are now being "picked up" at bargain prices by "wise" Wall street interests. It was admitted by WPB officials that England is allowed all the mining equipment needed, under the Lend-Lease act and was substantially increasing South African gold production. However, it was stated, pressure is being brought upon Canada to follow the example of the United States in closing the gold mines. So far Canada has not responded to this WPB pressure. But the propaganda for this has scared the Canadians and their stocks are slumping badly; at present they are down to 50 per cent of their 1940-41 levels, and reportedly are being picked up by the "wise boys."

"Under the closing order the gold mines will be permitted to keep their mines open, without production, and at their own expense, which in some cases will run as high as $25,000 a month. My estimate and that of other operators was that the mine closing order would transfer at most 500 miners from gold production to that of copper and other strategic minerals, but as it turns out, the number so transferred is even less."

FIRST SNOW STORM HITS NEVADA CITY

Two inches of snow fell yesterday in Nevada City, coming down intermittently most of the day. At Camptonville there was four inches of snow. There was a heavy snow fall in the higher elevations.

The snow fall locally added about 1.5 inches to this season's moisture precipitation. Total rainfall to date is 12.6 inches.

FURNISHINGS FOR CAMP BEALE DAY ROOMS WANTED

The Camp and Hospital Service, a unit of the American Red Cross, whose duties it has been to see that the day rooms at Camp Beale are furnished, has now been charged with the additional duty of seeing that Christmas trees, ornaments and gifts are supplied for 500 boys in the hospital wards at the camp. Nevada City's quota will be five large boxes or ornaments for five of the 25 trees, and miscellaneous gifts to fill 50 boxes. The trees have been furnished by the Forest Service and the ornaments for the trees will be made or donated by the Junior Red Cross under the direction of Miss Ruth Hogan.

Gifts are not to exceed 25 or 35 cents and several are to be packed in colorful Christmas boxes. Mr. Gallagher, chairman, urges all clubs, organizations or individuals who would care to give small items for the soldiers, such as combs, mirrors, wash rags, soap, books, games, candy, ash trays, etc. to leave them with him or call Mrs. Kemper, who has charge of the packing and she will call for them.

TWO NEVADA CITY BOYS GRADUATE AS ARMY FLYERS

Ernest Chapman, son of Lieut. Col. Allen Chapman and grandson of Dr. C. W. Chapman of Nevada City was commissioned Lieutenant in the Air corps at Luke Field, Phoenix, Arizona on Thursday, Dec. 3, and will be assigned a P 38, the double fusilage now being used in Africa. Young Chapman is a graduate of the Nevada City High School as was his father and mother and grandmother. He will be sent to Glendale for a period of "maturing" Allen was one of a group of five boys who all trained together and who were commissioned the same day. Each asked to be assigned to a P 38 and their request was granted.

James Odegaard, son of the late Oscar Odegaard and Mrs. Odegaard, who now resides in the bay district, also received his lieutenant's commission on the Dec 3.. He is also a graduate of the Nevada City High School, graduating in the same class with young Chapman. He has been assigned a bomber and will go to Colorado for further training.

TOO MUCH RAIN, BOGGY WOODS, HALT LOGGING

The Pendola sawmill, ormerly belonging to Grant & Heether, near Camptonville has been obliged to suspend operations because of November's heavy rainfall in that region. Forest Ranger Frank Meggers, reports 17.53 inches precipitation during last month, which is more than for many years in November.

The woods have become so boggy that logging is impossible. It has also been diffcult to obtain competent lobar. The Pendola mill, it is estimated, can cut 500,000 board feet monthly, while the old Pendola mill, two miles distant, can cut between 200,000 and 300,000 monthly. Tahoe Forest officials state that there is a ready market for all the lumber both mills can cut. The Forest Service is spending $12,000 in improving the seven miles of road from Camptonville to the mill, most of it upon a two mile stretch that is being heavily graveled.

SIXTEEN-TO-ONE MAY RESUME LIMITED WORK

Clayton Bennett, superintendent of the famous Original Sixteen-to-One mine at Alleghany, stated yesterday that he has not received full information regarding the modification of the WPB's gold mine closing order which is expected to permit the Sixteen-to-One to carry on limited operations sufficient to pay, at least a part of maintenance costs. He thought the mine would not be allowed to increase the present maintenance crew, but that these men might be used, part time, to break and mill some small amount of ore.

Regarding the 100 men which his mine normally employs, Bennett said that at the time the mine shut down on October 8, only 50 men were employed, the others having gone to war industries or more highly paid work. Most of these 50 registered with the Grass Valley office of the U. S. employment service, Bennett stated, but to his knowledge only five left for copper mines employment, and one of these had since returned.

STOLEN CAR IS RECOVERED

The Grass Valley State Highway Patrol office reports quick work in recavering a car stolen from Earl Covey, auto dealer of that city. Covey reported his loss Friday and Saturday morning the car was found and identified by Highway Patrol officers from the Yuba-Sutter patrol, alongside the road outside of Marysville with its tires intact and with plenty of gas in the tank. The thief was not apprehended.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Legg of Berkeley were week end guests Mr. and Mrs. George Legg of this city.

SCRAP STEEL AND RUBBER MOVED BY ARMY TRUCKS

The huge scrap pile of iron and steel junk and rubber tires opposite the California Highway Patrol office in Hills Flat was yesterday hauled to Colfax and loaded into a gondola car. Camp Beale sent 12 army trucks manned by five officers and 40 soldiers to do the job. The work was accomplished despite rain and the first snow storm of the season here.

At noon the Red Cross chapter of Grass Valley served officers and men with a piping hot lunch in the high school cafeteria at Grass Valley.

TRUCK DRIVER FATALLY HURT

Donald H. Buckley, 28, truck driver, of Oakland, was fatally crushed yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock when a tank trailer rolled six feet and caught him against a state snow plow. He died in the Grass Valley communty hospital this morning at 6:30 o'clock. The remains are in charge of Coroner A. M. Holmes.

The accident occured on Highway No. 40 on a curve just west of Cisco. A truck and a semi-trailer had slipped into the bank because of fresh fall of snow. Another truck with an oil tank trailer came along and piled up against the first truck. A state highway crew with a snow plow undertook to pull the truck with the tank trailer away from the first truck. The truck had been pulled into the road. Then the snow plow hooked onto the tank trailer. Buckley stood on the short tongue of the trailer to keep it in place.

The tongue began to slip out of its clamp, and Patrol Officer Carl Kitts standing beside the trailer shouted a warning to Buckley, but he replied there was no danger. The tongue dropped to the ground the truck which was on a down grade rolled forward and crushed Buckley against the snow plow.

Buckley was removed to a hospital in Colfax, but last evening was taken to the community hospital in Grass Valley where he died.

GIFTS FOR BOYS IN HOSPITAL AT CAMP BEALE

Nevada county has been asked to fill and wrap 100 boxes as its share of the 500 to be distributed as gifts for the boys in the hospital wards at Camp Beale.

At a recent meeting of the Red Cross representatives from Marysville, Yuba City, and Colusa with represenatives of Nevada City and Grass Valley, to discuss details, under the direction of Raymond Clinch chairman, Francis McQuiston of Grass Valley and Marie Kemper of Nevada City, an appeal was made for donations of all kinds.

Articles needed to fill the boxes are: small mirrors, pencils and stationery, little puzzles, small dictionaries, combs, ash trays, lotion, wash cloths, playing cards, soap. An equivalent of 35 cents worth of articles will be put in each box.

The community is urged to leave any of these articles or the money to purchase these articles at the Chapter House in Grass Valley where the boxes will be filled and wrapped.

In addition Nevada City and Grass Valley have been asked to furnish decorations for ten large Christmas trees. This work will be distributed amongst the Junior Red Cross, Boy Scout and Girl Scout Troops.

The packages must be wrapped by December 20 and an immediate response is requested to accompnish this work of helping the boys at Christmas time—boys in the hospital at Camp Beale.

NO MORE IMPERIALISM, PLEASE

Winston Churchill's now immortal words that he was not in office to "preside at the liquidation of the British empire" might very well not have been spoken insofar as their effect upon United Nations morale and unity is concerned.

Churchill's statement has a curious similarity to the phrase "imperialism as usual" and has been so interpreted by many both in England and in others of the Allied nations.

Particularly, it did not bode well for the settlement of the Indian question, a problem which has done much to hamper United Nations' efforts in the Asiatic theatre.

The prime minister's words also did not ring true to the note sounded by himself and President Roosevelt in the drawing up of the Atlantic Charter, the document in which we pledged ourselves to deliver the oppressed nations of the world from their oppressors.

America and Britain, apparently as a move toward fulfillment of the Atlantic Charter's terms, have relinquished their extraterritorial rights in China, rights which long have been one of the keystones in the British empire. Does the prime minister mean by his recent statement that Britain intends to welsh on that promise?

Britain has from time to time declared herself willing to make some sort of a settlement of the Indian question. Does Churchill mean now that the empire intends to welsh out of those declarations and allow the status quo to exist?

The two English-speaking democracies have made solemn promises that they intend to see that every nation of the world is given its rightful place in the brotherhood of nations. Churchill's statement sounds like a hint that Britain at least does not mean to keep those promises. We must keep those promises if we are to estalbish any kind of a lasting peace after the war is over and if we are to maintain our self-respect and the confidence of the other peoples of the world. —Sacramento Union.

PRESIDENT PRAISES SELECTIVE SERVICE BOARDS

Local Boards of the Selective Service System have earned the gratitude of the entire Nation for their fair and efficient discharge of duty, President Roosevelt declared in his Columbus Day address over a nation-wide hook-up.

The successful operation of Selective Service through its local boards in the procurement of men for the armed forces, the president said indicates that the same principle might be applied successfully to the entire manpower problem of the Nation. And because of this popular approval of the Selective Service, he declared he feels confident that if similar legislation becomes necessary to maintain war production the American people will not shrink from it. He said:

"In a sense every American because of the privilege of his citizenship is a part of the Selective Service.

"The Nation owes a debt of gratitude to the Selective Service Boards. The successful operation of the Selective Service System and the way it has been accepted by the great mass of our citizens give us confidence that, if necessary, the same principle could be used to solve any manpower problem."

He was 82 years of age. A sister, Mrs. Eva Wilson of Clinton, Iowa, survives. The Rev. David Ralston conducted the services.

William Hill, brother of Mrs. Nance James, left Saturday for Sacramento where he will enter war work at a nearby air field.

THE EDITORIAL CIRCUIT RIDER

(A Symposium of Editorial Comment from California Newspapers)

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN

When French sailors scuttled their fleet at Toulon they made one of the most heroic sacrifices known to mankind, in the opinion of California editors.

Not only was the scuttling a brilliant defiance of armed might; it was a death blow to Hitler's hopes for world domination, and proved that a nation may be conquered but a people never, they said.

"The world—except the Axis," said the Inglewood Daily News, "stands again in reverent respect to the spirit of equality and love of freedom which impelled those brave and courageous Frenchmen to scuttle their own fleet before it fell into the wicked hands of Hitler and Mussolini. It was the worst news Hitler has had since the war started and definitely was the moving finger writing his own doom upon the wall."

Of greater importance than destruction of the fleet, however, was the fact, according to the Orange Daily News, that "it shows the true feeling of the French people toward their German conquerors. The fleet, in German hands, would have offered a threat to allied sea power that would have compelled the allied command to detach large forces for the purpose of watching it. Such forces may now be used to great advantage else where. But the action of Frenchmen in destroying their ships proves that the sympathy of the French people is with their former allies and that, when opportunity arises, the strength of France will be thrown against Germany."

"It would have been better, obviously," comments the Santa Ana Register, "if the ships had been able to make their escape from the harbor and had thrown their power and fighting strength into active support of the allies. True, the Germans had laid a field of mines that encircled the fleet but at the same time it would seem if the fleet had made a break at the time the American troops moved into Africa a large number of them could have escaped."

On the contrary ,notes the Merced Sun-Star, "many persons are unaware that the French fleet used special sizes of ammunition and torpedoes which only the French factories could supply. The United Nations could not supply these sizes from their present factories. The United Nations would have had to re-equip most of the French vessels in order to use them. Such re-equipping would have been a tedious task. The alternative of demobilization is accomplished effectively by the scuttling."

Incidentally, points out the Richmond Independent, "during the past two years the French have been vilified and cursed and mocked throughout the world for their apparent willingness to bow to every demand of the enemy. But when the time came for them to show the hated enemy that they were not subservient to their every whim, the French navy was equal to the task. It must have been a sad day for France. But is was also a glorious one in that the French people showed once more they are not beaten and will not be beaten by the Germans."

The incident, states the Antioch Daily Ledger, "returns France to the role of one of our allies with the people of France witnessing a demonstration never matched in history. Germany may continue to dominate France and its Vichy government and to force the French to bow to Nazi regulations, but Frence today only awaits the opportunity to rise from her shackles and recover her independence. Her people will be more than axious, extremely encouraged, to practice every sort of sabotage against the Germans and to aid the allies."

"But," concludes the Pasadena Post, "Toulon may come to have a meaning. Toulon is at the bottom of the pit, a pit deeper and more humiliating than any into which a great nation has fallen in modern times. France can fall no farther. Her eyes may now be turned upward. Toulon, conceivably, could be beginning of a new France."

TURKEY IS NOW MODERN NATION

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—One of forty professors from German universities invited to teach at the University of Istanbul, Turkey when Nazi oppressions began, Dr. Hans Reichenbach, declares Turkey to be one of the most modern nations.

Now professor of philosophy on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, Dr Reichenbach believes that Turkey will resist any invasion by Hitler, and doubts that an attempt at invasion will be made.

Five years at the University of Istanbul, he reports that higher education receives much impetus directly from the government. Under the presidency of its recteur, Cemil Bilsel, the university professors were given generous funds for the purchase of libraries and scientific equipment.

The new activities of the unveiled women of Turkey have not been abused, according to Dr. Reichenbach and the men have been glad at the adoption of occidental customs. The late Kemal Attaturk, founder of modern Turkey, remains revered by the entire country, where now boys and girls walk together in the public parks, and sports and scientific discussion as well find plenty of participants.

LIQUOR INDUSTRY MUST ALSO MAKE WAR SACRIFICES

By JOHN W. DUNLAP

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—(UP)—Like everything else, the liquor industry is getting around to making wartime sacrifices.

After Dec. 10, it will be illegal to buy a drink after midnight or buy package liquors after 8 p. m. And the opening hours have been pushed up from 6 a. m. to 10 a. m.

The state board of equalization put through the rule in compliance with a military request so there could be complete uniformity between civilian and military-naval-uniformed sales.

There were various ifs and ands in the order but the board made it plain they expected no kickbacks from the industry. Swift retaliation is well within the board's powers, because a license is easily vulnerable, such as being placed out of bounds for military or naval personnel, which brings prompt action by the board.

But hardly had the wires finished carrying the details than Hugh Burns, senator-elect from Fresno county and chairman of an assembly committee on public morals, challenged the ruling. Burns pointed out correctly that closing hours are set by statute and said the legislature is competent to take care of such matters.

Things are done in wartime that would not be attempted in peacetime, such as the wholesale ousting of Japanese state employes, all of whom were American citizens. The same is true of various regulations in the liquor industry, where emergency action seems justified by war conditions. Board members explained how the uniform rules would simplify the task of law enforcement and prevent friction with the uniformed services.

Whether Burns is correct or not, the fact remains that any one attempting to go into court to right the rule would not be in business long. And it will only be a few weeks until the legislature is in session again for a thorough airing of the problem. The ruling is repealed by the enactment of an legislation, and dies at the adjournment of the legislature. Most of the licensees, probably all of them, would have complied voluntarily if asked by the military, so the new regulations will be accepted gratefully in behalf of protection of war workers and those who wear fighting clothes.

BOTANY HUNTERS HOME FROM PERU

BERKELEY, Dec. 7. — Assistant with the University of California botanical evpedition in South America, Roy Metcalf has just returned from Lima, Peru, to enter the armed services.

Orchids and tobacco were his principal objects of study while assisting Dr. T. Harper Goodspeed, professor of botany and director of the University of California botanical gardens, currently on his third expedition to the Andes.

The main objective of the expedition has been to study little-known varieties of the tobacco plant native to the Andes. In addition to working on this collection, Metcalf pursued his hobby of gathering rare species of orchids. Several of these have been sent to the university, where they will be placed in the Herbarium after being studied and classified by specialists. Other items have been shipped to the National Museum in Washington, D. C.

Metcalf reported that Dr. Goodspeed has been well received by South American institutions where he has lectured, and plans to complete his investigations shortly. On his tour through Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, and Brazil, Dr. Goodspeed has been official representative of the University and the State of California, collaborator of the U. S. Department of Interior National Park Service, and representative of the Committee on Inter American Artistic and Intellectual Relations with funds provided by the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

SURPRISE NEXT MARCH AWAITS ALL TAXPAYERS

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

There's a day of rude awekening coming next March, when American taxpayers, big and small, learn how much they owe Uncle Sam under the drastically increased federal income tax and the Victory tax, enacted to aid the nation's war time financing.

While the newspapers have published a great deal of news concerning the new taxes, recent surveys, conducted both by government officers and private agencies, indicate that most of the people have no conception of the taxes they will be required to pay, and that 75 per cent of taxpayers are not saving any portion of their wages or earnings to foot the bill.

The failure to recognize the need for building a reserve to meet the income tax levies when they fall due is more pronounced among taxpayers in the lower income groups, many of whom have not previously paid such taxes, and nation wide check-ups indicate that only 15 per cent of the people in this category have started to make any provision for meeting their tax installment on March 15.

The fact that the new, war-time income tax is a tax on the masses, which will even tap the pocketbook of the $15 a week delivery boy, does not seem to have registered with the public, and treasury officials are alarmed at the possibility that many taxpayers will be wholly unprepared to meet their obligations, with the result that there will be widespread tax delinquencies. Government officers also are concerned over the possibility that many taxpayers will sell their war bonds and stamps to get money to meet their tax bills, thus reducing the amount which will be available to prosecute the war.

If chaotic conditions obtain when it comes time to pay the new federal taxes, with thousands of taxpayers compelled to make bank loans to meet their bills, with others disposing of their war securities, and with still others in difficulties with Uncle Sam for failure to pay, it may hasten federal action to put the new tax program on a pas as you earn basis.

Some indication of what the new levy will amount to for the individual taxpayer is found in the fact that a married man, with two children, who earns $50 a week, will have to pay approximately $165. A man with two children, whose earnings approximate $10,000 a year, will get a bill for between $2100 and $2000.

On top of that, in California, there's a state income tax, as the voters failed to repeal this tax at the November election.

There is a good possibility, however, that the state legislature, recognizing the need of reducing state and local taxes wherever possible to help taxpaers to meet their greatly increased federal obligations, will either repeal or reduce the state income tax.

Many of the organizations which opposed the repeal measure on the ballot did so because it contained a provision prohibiting the legislature from re-enacting such a tax in the future. And these groups, in a good number of instances, will favor some action in the legislature to ease the burden, either by outright repeal, by reduction in rate, or by an amendment providing that the amount paid in federal taxes may be used as a deduction in computing state tax payments.

In all likelihood, due to the fact that the state treasury has a rapidly growing surplus, with tax collections far exceeding the state's needs, the legislature will press for tax reductions on several fronts. Governor-elect Earl Warren, during his campaign, served notice that he intended to trim state spending to actual needs, eliminating every form of governmental extravagance, and said that he favored repeal of the state income tax, a reduction in the state sales tax, or elimination of the tax on small sales, and some action to help the counties in meeting their share of old age pension costs. This latter proposal, if some safeguard can be maintained to insure local responsibility in keeping pension costs from going to abnormal levels, would help to relieve common property taxpayers, as it is planned to have the state assume a greater share of the burden.

This much is certain: The state has no need for the surplus it is now accumulating—and some provision should be made for passing along the saving to the taxpayers. When federal tax time comes around, the taxpayer will need a break—and need it badly!

WIDOW, LEFT LIFE INTEREST, CONTESTS WILL

Mrs. Martha Thomas, widow of the late Thomas John Thomas, who died November 11th in Grass Valley and left an estate of $46,000, will contest her deceased husband's will, which left her only a life interest in the estate.

Mrs. Thomas states in her petition to the superior court that there is another will under which she was to receive the bulk of the estate.

E. Raymond Clinch, insurance man of Grass Valley, under the will filed for probate, was named executor and chief legatee. Minor bequests were made for friends and relatives as well as the life interest for the wife.

Mrs. Thomas charges Clinch exercised undue influence upon her husband who was 86 years old.

An itemized list states the estate consists of $2,500 in realty, $3,500 in stocks and $40,000 in ccoeperate securities and bonds.

MARIN YARD TO BUILD TANKERS

The SS William T. Coleman, second Liberty ship to be built at Sausalito, was officially accepted by the United States Maritime Commission on November 30, Marinship Corporation officials announced today. The cargo vessel is now being loaded at a Pacific Coast port. The ship will be operated by the Luckenbach Lines.

The Marinship yard has launced five emergency cargo vessels and delivered two. A total of fifteen cargo vessels will be built before the yard is converted for tanker production.

LYON PROBABLY TO BE SPEAKER IN ASSEMBLY

By JOHN W. DUNLAP

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—(UP)—Now that January is so near at hand, the makeup of the legislature and its control becomes more important, particularly as it affects that veteran of the capitol—Assemblyman Charles W. Lyon of Los Angeles.

Lyon is the second oldest legislator in point of service, having first been elected in 1914. He ranks next to Senator Herbert Slater, now finishing his 16th successive two-year term.

Unless something exceedingly unusual happens, Lyon will be the next assembly speaker. Most likely speaker pro tem will be Thomas Maloney of San Francisco. Both are Republicans and astute veterans of legislation, since Maloney has served nine terms and like Lyon, once served in the senate before it was reapportioned in a county basis.

Seldom has a boom for a speaker been so emphatic, but the Republic an majority in the recent election touched off a veritable landslide for the Los Angeles attorney. He was floor leader last session and earned his legislative spurs by going into the assembly in 1914, then to the senate in 1918, 1922 and 1926, finally switching back to the assembly in 1932, being reelected each time since. He is a smart parliamentarian and smooth politicians, a valuable combination in the legislature.

The speakership is vacant because Gordon Garland was retired to private life by losing a campaign for the state board of equalization. The pro tem spot has been held by Oemocrat Earl Desmond, of Sacramento.

Those supporting Maloney for the second spot believe the Republicans with better than half the membership, do not need the support of bolting Defocrats. Others would like to keep the Democratic goodwill but Maloney's personal popularity and unquestioned fitness as a legislator likely will give him the nod over the field.

As for the floorleader to succeed Lyon, several would like the influential job, including Sam Collins of Fullerton, Harrison Call of Redwood City, Arthur Carlson of Piedmont and Albert Wollenberg of San Francisco.

Wilkie Ogg of Sacramento seems assured of reappointment as sergeant at arms of the assembly and Arthur Ohnimus, veteran clerk, will be back at the old stand.

In the senate, there is just an inkling of a battle for the president pro tem spot between Incumbent William P. Rich of Marysville and Jerrold Seawell of neighboring Roseville.

Rich is virtually conceded the job, since he beat Seawell two years ago and is a hard-fisted fighter with plenty of friends. Chief change in faces will be the president, since Lt. Gov. Ellis E. Patterson will be replaced by personable, competent F. W. Houser from the assembly. Patterson was an excellent presiding officer and it can be assumed that Houser will likewise do a good job.

The corridor gossipers are wondering where Governor-elect Earl Warren will put Gordon Garland to repay him for the campaigning and speechmaking he contributed during the campaign. Garland is a Democrat and logical choice for a cabinet position, fulfilling Warren's promise to have a non-partisan council.

As for repaying debts, it is wondered whether Olson will feel obligated to "take care" of Patterson before the month is out. Patterson is ineligible to accept a judgeship, since has was not admitted to the bar until 1938 and a nominee must have five years practice. Patterson already has said he will run for U. S. senator against Sheridan Downey two years hence, might like a well-paying job to tide him over until then.

Personal

Ed Carey came down from Wasnington and was greeting friends in Nevada City Friday. He will spend the winter here.

Robert James, son of Mrs. Nance James, has completed his course at "boot camp" near San Diego and has been sent to nearby Camp Mathews. He likes the marine training and his camp.

Oscar E. Engstrom better known to his wide circle of friends in Nevada City as "Swede" is now a seaman second class in U. S. navy aviation and is training in a metal smith school at Norman, Oklahoma. He enlisted some time ago and is making a fine showing. He was formerly employed at Dick Lane's Service Station on Broad street where his sunny disposition made him a wide circle of admiring friends.

Dick James, son of Mrs. Nance James, is now stationed at Camp Callan near San Diego. He is enjoying his training for the armed service.

Emmett Gallagher, of the Save Bore Store, received a badly injured elbow in an accident on Monday. He is carrying his right arm in a sling. It is particularly bad for him, with the Christmas season coming on, in his work at the store.

Mrs. C. E. Clark of North Bloomfield was a Nevada City visitor Friday. Her husband is operator of gravel mines in the North Bloomfield area.

Mrs. Opal Reynolds and daughter, Miss Ruth Reynolds, of Santa Cruz left for their home Sunday after a most enjoyable visit with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tourtelotte of Willow Valley.

Mrs. H. Lacey, who has been visiting her friend, Mrs. Eva Knight of Boulder street for about a month, will leave on Thursday for her home in Los Angeles. She is a resident of Colorado and her great desire while in this city was to see snow fall. She was rewarded in her wish as it snowed about three inches on Sunday. While here her late husband's nephew, Thomas Cassidy of New York, visited her. The young man is employed as a mechanic at an air port near Sacramento.

Bert Foreman's Son Now in U. S. Navy

FARRAGUT, Idaho, Dec. 6. — A new Nevada City, California, volunteer for service in the U. S. Navy has reported to the Naval Training Station here. He is Gordon Henry Foreman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Foreman, Route 1.

After several weeks of recruit training, during which time he will learn the fundamentals of Navy life, he will be assigned to a Navy service school for specialized training or sent to the U. S. fleet for early action against our enemies.

NEW CAR PLATES WILL BE TINY

Motor vehicle owners of Nevada County will be given more time in which to pay 1943 registration and license fees because of the inability of manufacturers to deliver license plates to the Department of Motor Vehicles for the opening of the renewal period which normally begins January 2nd.

Advice to the Nugget today from Thomas V. Maloney, Acting Registrar said the opening of the period might be delayed until as late as February 1st because of the lack of plates. Emergency legislation setting the opening and closing dates forward several weeks will be introduced as soon as the legislature meets.

Meanwhile, Maloney advised owners of motor cars to refrain from mailing fees and applications for 1943 plates to Sacramento or from filing 1943 applications in person at any of the department's branch offices until the dates have been definitely established.

The new plates will be thin steel "tabs" of but four square inches. Adopted as a means of conserving vital war material, they will have a red "V" on a background of white and must be attached to the California plates now displayed.

DEATH CALLS JOHN B. WYNNE

John B. Wynne, 73, passed away at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the Nevada County hospital after a prolonged illness. He had been a resident of this county for 54 years and prior to coming to the hospital lived in Grass Valley. He was a native of Canada and, so far as known, had no relatives in this county. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Holmes Funeral Home.

PENDOLA MILL SUSPENDS

The Pendola sawmill, formerly known as the Grant & Heether plant, has suspended operations because of the unusual November rainfall. The Pendola sawmill, forest officials estimate can cut 500,000 board feet a month.

The Tahoe National Forest Service is spending $12,000 in improving the seven mile road into the mill.

Mrs. Earl Warren to Christen Liberty Ship

Promptly at 12:30 Monday afternoon, Mrs. Earl Warren, wife of California's governor-elect, swung a red, white and blue wrapped bottle of California champagne against the bow of the SS Philip Kearney at the Marinship yard in Sausalito. The launching of the sixth Liberty ship was Marinship's way of remembering Pearl Harbor. Mrs. William F. Knowland, wife of the publisher of the Oakland Tribune, was matron of honor.

Principal speaker at the ceremonies, was Attorney General Warren, who also made the first arc a few moments later when the keel was laid for Marinship's first tanker. Donning a welder's helmet, after receiving honorary membership in the boilermakers', welders' and burners' union, Warren handled the welding rod like a veteran.
